

THE ULTIMATE DAILY ESCAPE: NEW MAZDA RESEARCH SHOWS A MAJORITY OF MOMS WOULD TRADE DAILY DELIGHTS FOR THE PERFECT DRIVE

IRVINE, Calif. (April 29, 2026) – For the modern mom, true luxury isn't defined by a logo on the grille, but by the feeling of a vehicle cabin designed around her. According to a survey commissioned by Mazda North American Operations (MNAO)¹, many parents see their vehicle as the ultimate daily escape and a personal sanctuary to decompress and reflect. The desire for a premium experience is so strong that a majority of moms are willing to trade daily delights in exchange for a vehicle that delivers an intuitive, high-quality drive.

The survey data also shows over half of moms are willing to give up alcohol (64%), gym memberships (52%), their favorite podcasts (57%), sweet treats (55%), manicures and pedicures (52%), and dining out (51%) for an entire year to drive their dream vehicle for a year. The research also redefines "luxury," indicating that for nearly eight out of ten moms (79%), a vehicle's comfort, performance, and technology make it stand out more than a luxury brand name. This is further supported by the 68% of moms who would prefer a high-quality vehicle from a mainstream brand with no loan payments over a luxury vehicle with a manageable one. When it comes to a vehicle feeling high quality and well-made, the most advanced safety and driver-assist features are important to nearly all moms (93%).

"The vehicle cabin has become a personal retreat, especially for parents navigating demanding lives," said Jennifer Morrison, Director of Vehicle Safety at Mazda North American Operations. "It's a place where they can reclaim a sense of self. The survey data uncovers that today's moms prioritize safety and the intuitive, high-quality experience of the drive itself over a traditional luxury nameplate. At Mazda, we believe you shouldn't have to choose. We are dedicated to designing vehicles that are not only havens of peace and thoughtful design but also deliver a soul-stirring drive and the safety features moms want, all without compromise."
